South Africa: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow: Lecture and Discussion

Tuesday, April 21st @ 5:00 pm – 6:30 pm
Campbell Dome | Queens College

South Africa: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow provides a personal glimpse into South Africa based on Vice Chairperson Philip Berry’s experiences with South Africa over the years. The talk highlights some of the pivotal economic, political, historical, global and social occurrences that inform the role of South Africa on the continent and in the world as an emerging market. Leonard Thompson’s book, A History of South Africa, 4th edition, 2014 (updated by Lynn Berat) provides excellent background for this lecture.

Philip Alfonso Berry received a BA in Sociology from Queens College, an Associate’s Degree in Marketing from Borough of Manhattan Community College, an MBA from Xavier University of Cincinnati, and an MSW from Columbia University in New York. In June 2006, he was appointed by Governor George Pataki to the Board of The City University of New York. In June 2007, he was appointed Vice Chairperson of the Board by Governor Eliot Spitzer. In 2010, he was reappointed for a seven-year term by Governor David Paterson. Currently, Mr. Berry is President of Philip Berry Associates LLC, which provides executive coaching, leadership training, diversity consulting and organizational development services.

For more information contact marleen.kassel@qc.cuny.edu

http://southafrica.qc.cuny.edu

Sponsored by the Queens College Foundation and the Office of the President